

Executive Director
Habitat for Humanity for Sarpy County
Mr. Jon Costello

The Board of Directors for Habitat for Humanity of Sarpy County (HFH-SC) is pleased to announce the arrival of Mr. Jon Costello as HFH-SC's new Executive Director.

Mr. Costello grew up in Bellevue so he is very familiar with Habitat's mission and the good works Habitat does for Sarpy County families in need of quality housing. "I look forward to serving the board of directors and supporting the tremendous group of volunteers who offer their talents and skills so that families can work for and obtain affordable housing in our community." Mr. Costello added: "I also look forward to enhancing the rewarding experience Habitat for Humanity has to offer Sarpy County residents and businesses while increasing the current level of engagement in terms of volunteering and charitable donations."

Mr. Costello received his Bachelor's Degree in Marketing Management from Bellevue University. He brings non-profit and for-profit business leadership experience to the Executive Director position. He is an astute marketing professional with exceptional talents in public relations, fundraising, event planning and sales. The Board President, John "Mac" McLean, was elated to have Jon join the Habitat team. "Jon brings a wealth of experience to the Executive Director position and we are delighted and encouraged with his enthusiasm and passion to help Habitat for Humanity of Sarpy County achieve the next level of excellence," McLean said.

Jon is married to Dr. Julie Taylor-Costello, who is the program director for the adult education program at Bellevue University. Jon and Julie are members of Thanksgiving Lutheran Church in Bellevue. The couple attended school in Bellevue and graduated from Bellevue West High School. The couple currently resides in Papillion.
